

How is the procedure for adding and subtracting decimals related to adding and subtracting fractions?

When you line up the decimal points and fill in the zeros, you are finding a common denominator and making equivalent fractions, when you add the numbers, you are adding the numerators, and when you bring the decimal point straight down, you are bringing down the denominator.